

BEFORE YOUR READ

-
-
- A table of contents is a skeleton outline of the information you can expect to

-
-
- This gets your brain thinking about what information you already know about the topic you're reading
 - Which then allows you to make meaningful connections between what you already know and what you are learning
 - Attaching new information to old information will help you learn and